Introducing our Monthly Member Spotlight!

Katrina Benson

Vice President, The Art Guild

CPCAS

colored pencil artist

"My work gravitates toward realism, although I enjoy all forms of artistic expression and experimentation. For me, working in realism is an opportunity to explore easily overlooked nuances in the world around me. The process of looking deeply and interpreting with each stroke gives me a profound sense of connection and gratitude for the wonders of even the simplest of objects."

"The complex process of using colored pencil is similar to what I enjoy most about working in watercolor, because, much like watercolor, colored pencil is a transparent medium that needs multiple layers to achieve its final effect. Moreover, colored pencil is unique in its ability to render detail, so it is well suited for articulating realistic elements."
